General Data Protection Regulations - GDPR

T. +44 (0) 1889 577701

Is your workforce activity compliant with General Data Protection Regulations (2018)?

Since General Data Protection Regulations (GDPR) came into force in 2018, all working establishments within Europe must comply with the legislation.

The legislation applies to all organisations irrespective of size, including charities.

Failure to comply with the regulations can result in significant fines and criminal prosecution.

Who is GDPR training for?

GDPR training is essential for those who collect, store, process, use, transfer and delete personal data. Still think that GDPR doesn't relate to you? Think again! GDPR affects how all companies in the EU use, manage and store data.

What does the GDPR course cover?

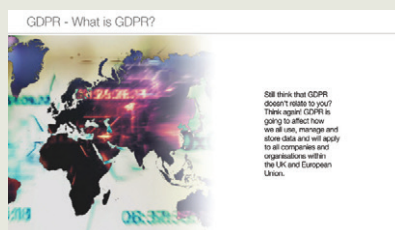

The GDPR course covers:

- Countries that must comply with GDPR.
- Basics steps that you have to take to be GDPR compliant.
- How to keep data safe and secure.

What is the benefit of GDPR training in your business?

This online training is a cost- and time-effective alternative to sending your staff for face-to-face training. With this course, your staff will have GDPR knowledge at the click of a button.

Staff can complete their training at any time to suit your needs.

Video Presentations.

Final Exam – Certificates Provided.

Completing this online training course does not formally qualify anyone in GDPR nor should this course be taken for direct legal advice. This course should be taken as guidance on GDPR.

GDPR is the culmination of 4 years of efforts to update data protection for the 21st century. The UK government has also committed to the regulations following Brexit. GDPR addresses the export of personal data and the internal handling of data in companies.
